was introduced to and joined the USANA Health Sciences group in 1998.

USANA is a company out of Salt Lake City that formulates and produces nutritional supplements and weight management products. The Government's Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) was originally created in the 1940's to help prevent disease such as scurvy and rickets, through good nutrition; the RDA was revised in 1974 to what it is today. However, the diseases of today are not being prevented with the current RDA, thus supplements are required for optimum health.

The nutrition industry is not regulated by the FDA, but USANA voluntarily manufactures all of its products at pharmaceutical standards, making them truly the highest quality supplement on the market. They even have 6 or 7 products in the Physicians Desk Reference used by doctors and pharmacists in prescribing drugs to patients.

USANA manufactures multi-vitamins for youth, teen and adults, and has products for joint health, heart health, eye health, prostate health, female hormone boosters, protein, fiber and many other products including health bars and shakes for optimum health.

John sets up clients with an identification number, so that they can call or go on-line to order products; some prefer auto-ship, which is a standing order that ships every 28 days so that you never run out.

The USANA products are formulated to do more than defend against deficiency diseases; they are designed to promote optimal health.

If you have questions about the products or would like to place an order, please call John Quintanal at (877) 817-0054.
