VALUE:

The Value for Ron Robinson of VIP Employer Services is to be able to call on anyone in the group and get a quality service and feel taken care of. He knows that when he gives a referral to another member it is given with sincerity, knowing that he is helping someone and that they will be taken care of just the way he is.

CLASSIFICATION:

Rick Hume, D.C. CCSP was born in San Francisco and grew up in Pacifica. In 1978 he joined the service right out of high school, serving 4 years in the Air Force doing anti-terrorism work.

With his military training, he soon got a degree in criminal justice and secured a job in private corporate security. He was offered jobs by law enforcement agencies, but what he had always wanted to do was become an architect.

So, while still searching for his career path, he saw a chiropractor for some old injuries. Seeing how he had been helped and with a little intervention, by "fate" he quit his job and went to school to become a chiropractor.

He was married for 14 years, divorced 3 years ago and has 2 beautiful children. He opened his own practice in 1989. He promoted his practice through networking in groups like the Pleasanton Chamber, where he met Jan Batcheller, and working with the Red Cross. He also joined the TVEA 11 years ago through a former member, Bodylines Day Spa.

As he advanced in his career as a chiropractor, he became interested in holistic medicine. Dr. Hume is now trained in acupuncture/acupressure and continues to study different philosophies. He did his fellowship in medical acupuncture a couple of years ago and is now overlapping and integrating Western and Eastern philosophies and focusing on mind-body health, not just joint manipulation.

Two years ago, Dr. Hume moved his practice from Livermore to Bodylines Day Spa in San Ramon when they expanded their offices. He has developed a new program concentrating more on the patient's overall health, looking at the balance and movement of the body, trying to incorporate Zen philosophies, and really trying to educate patients on the difference of average versus normal regarding pain.

He has slowed the pace of appointments in order to spend more time on patient care. To schedule an appointment with Dr. Hume, at the Pain Relief Studio, please call 447-5555.
