Mona Fox was born and raised in California, growing up in Orange County. As a young girl, she knew she wanted to be an artist. She took art class after art class and ended up as a graphic artist.

She worked for Oil Changers, doing their graphic design and marketing for about 10 years. Then working for Claire's West, a women's golf tour for about 5 years.

About that time, she started feeling like she needed a change. Mona met a man who was installing some moldings in a house. Her soul need search no farther – she fell in love with architecture.

Mona looked to Las Positas College to go back to school, but since the College didn't offer Architecture, she took what she thought to be the next best thing – Interior Design. Interior Design turned out to be the perfect fit for Mona; it was art and design and color and architecture, all the things she loved.

While in college, one of Mona's teachers got a call from the design co-op to be a paid intern. She got to work with five designers, one of whom was Pam Meyer of Design Works, LTD. She worked with Pam for almost two years when Pam decided to move to her home in Carmel. Pam was so confident and impressed with Mona's talent that she asked her to take over her clientele in the Tri-Valley. Mona was thrilled.

Mona now has her dream job and is enjoying working with all of her new clients.

Personally, she has been married for 20 years and has just become the godmother to her niece that lives in Washington D.C. Her hobby is running and was lucky enough to have done the New York Marathon as her first of many. Also, she and her husband just bought the old Evergreen Bed & Breakfast.

Mona says that most people know exactly what they want, but don't know how to communicate it. She can help you by starting with the things you know you like and the things you know you don't like.

Jan Batcheller of Gift Source has been working with Mona and says that she is a good listener, and has a good eye for color and style.

Phil Maser, General Contractor, has also been working with Mona and says that she is very thorough.
